Last Day Luanne Rice

From celebrated New York Times bestselling author Luanne Rice comes a riveting story of a seaside community shaken by a violent crime and a tragic loss.

Years ago, Beth Lathrop and her sister Kate suffered what they thought would be the worst tragedy of their lives the night both the famous painting Moonlight and their mother were taken. The detective assigned to the case, Conor Reid, swore to protect the sisters from then on.

Beth moved on, throwing herself fully into the art world, running the family gallery, and raising a beautiful daughter with her husband Pete. Kate, instead, retreated into herself and took to the skies as a pilot, always on the run. When Beth is found strangled in her home, and Moonlight goes missing again, Detective Reid can't help but feel a sense of déjà vu.

Reid immediately suspects Beth's husband, whose affair is a poorly kept secret. He has an airtight alibi—but he also has a motive, and the evidence seems to point to him. Kate and Reid, along with the sisters' closest childhood friends, struggle to make sense of Beth's death, but they only find more questions: Who else would have wanted Beth dead? What's the significance of Moonlight?

Twenty years ago, Reid vowed to protect Beth and Kate—and he's failed. Now solving the case is turning into an obsession . . .

This book made me healthy, rejuvenated, relaxed, rested, energized because it helped me to fight with my sleep deprivation and gave me an amazing sleep! I was bored to death. Even I started to write my will and reviewed my bucket list when I'm reading it.

The beginning was promising: Beth and Kate, two sisters suffered from a big tragedy that ended with their parents' death and a valuable paintings' stealing. A now Beth is dead and the very same painting's stolen. Then too many characters started to appear on the picture. And there are too many unnecessary yadayada blablabla's appeared on the pages. I felt like I was trapped in my own Groundhog day. My eyes were closing, the book was repeating itself and I woke up in panic, jumped out my couch and induced more caffeine to read more. ( The cycle repeated itself till I end this book)

For a long time, I haven't yawned so much, when I was reading a book and now my cheeks are killing me. I couldn't keep my eyes open. I drank gallons of coffee, listened to my husband's cursing to his soccer team (yes he recorded the games and started to watch at nighttime. But trust me even his silly jumping on the couch didn't alert me a little bit!), I listened "Five Finger Death Punch" from my headphones. Nope! Nothing worked. I surrendered to one of my best sleeps in my life and I didn't think all those long details and long descriptions, way too many characters and their long back stories.

If ending would be a little satisfying, I could really give three stars and classify this one as one of my Switzerland books but unfortunately I didn't like it ending either.

There are so many good reviews out there and I accept my expel to the minority wasteland. I tried so hard but this is the least likeable thriller reads of mine lately. So I'm giving my two stars and trying another book.

Beth Lathrop is found dead - murdered. Who by? That's it. Book is in three parts. Two parts too long = approximately 300 pages where I was bored out of my skull. Soooooo much unnecessary detail and I think when dead Beth joined in the narrative that finished me off. The ending was good (actually it wasn't) and I raised a resounding cheer. I know others loved it so maybe today I'm The Grinch.

Great premise and potential, but seriously overwritten, bogged down with redundant details and inconsistent characterizations. The pacing was off, the plot twist inconsistent and an editor's pen needed to do some serious work here. Disappointing.
